Rebecca works with clients of all sizes across several different industries, utilizing her 20 years of experience to meet her clients' tax needs and facilitate the growth of their businesses.

Leveraging her diverse skillset, Rebecca is driven by developing impactful tax solutions that help meet her client's business goals. With a specialization in tax planning and compliance for corporations, partnerships, and limited liability companies, she understands the businesses nuances they often face and helps them maximize opportunities as they arise. Her portfolio of work includes assisting clients with the preparation of financial reporting and analysis, budgeting, cash flow, startup projections and tax research. Rebecca also previously served as an instructor at Grand Valley State University, where she taught the tax research and writing class for their Master of Science in Taxation degree program.

Rebecca is quick to identify areas to improve client financial positions through tax research and financial analysis. Her continued thirst for knowledge and ability to coach others blends well with her approach to working closely with clients to help them better understand their financial position and path to growth.
